KAZAKHSTAN: 171 administrative prosecutions in 2018 - list

By Felix Corley, Forum 18 (<https://www.forum18.org>)

Full list of 171 known administrative prosecutions in 2018 to punish exercising freedom of religion or belief. Of these, 143 ended up with punishments, including fines, worship bans, seizures and destruction of religious literature, short-term jail terms and one deportation.

Kazakhstan's authorities are known to have brought at least 171 administrative prosecutions in 2018 to punish individuals, religious communities, charities and companies for their exercise of freedom of religion or belief. Of these, 143 ended up with punishments.

Punishments included fines, temporary bans on activity (including bans on meeting for worship), seizures and destruction of religious literature, two short-term jail terms and one deportation, according to a review of the known 2018 cases compiled by Forum 18 (see full list below).

Muslims, Protestants (especially Council of Churches Baptists), Jehovah's Witnesses, and commercial and private sellers were many of the targets of these prosecutions. (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article_id=2447)

Fines were mostly the equivalent of between three weeks' and four months' average wages for those in formal work (35 to 200 Monthly Financial Indicators, MFIs, 84,175 Tenge to 481,000 Tenge in 2018).

In two cases, courts ordered seized religious literature to be destroyed, 85 Islamic booklets in one case and one Christian book, "Bible Stories", in the other. (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article_id=2442)

One foreign citizen (a Kyrgyz-born Russian Muslim) was ordered deported.

Two individuals (both Council of Churches Baptists) were jailed (for 1 and 5 days) for refusing to pay earlier fines to punish them for exercising freedom of religion or belief. Council of Churches Baptists have a policy of not paying such fines.

Administrative prosecutions are known to have been brought in 2018 (with comparisons to 2017) to punish:

- 40 individuals, charities and companies for meeting for worship, hosting such meetings or maintaining places for such meetings (88 in 2017).
- 10 individuals and charities for offering religious literature to others for free (39 in 2017).
- 34 individuals and companies for offering religious literature, icons or other items for sale (58 in 2017).
- 18 individuals for offering religious items for sale online (10 in 2017).
- 23 individuals for posting religious materials online (12 in 2017).
- 17 individuals for sharing faith with others (31 in 2017).
- 21 Muslims for praying in mosques in ways that the state-controlled Muslim Board has banned, for example by using the word "Amen" (22 in 2017, the first year such punishments were imposed).
- 3 individuals for teaching their faith to children (2 in 2017).
- 1 religious leader for allowing children to be present or conducting religious rites against the wishes of one parent (9 in 2017).
- 2 religious communities for "inadequate" security or security measures for their places of worship, for example not having enough video cameras (5 in 2017).

- 2 individuals for failing to pay earlier fines to punish them for exercising the right to freedom of religion or belief (2 in 2017).

A total of 163 of these cases were heard in court, but 8 fines (7 of them later annulled) are known to have been summarily handed down by police (the total number could be higher).

Of the 159 administrative cases known to have been brought against individuals in 2018, 119 were against men and 40 against women. Women represented more than half of individuals prosecuted to punish offering religious literature and other items for sale, both in shops and online.

Of the 159 known administrative prosecutions against individuals in 2018, at least 11 began as cases under Criminal Code Article 174 ("Incitement of social, national, clan, racial, or religious discord, insult to the national honour and dignity or religious feelings of citizens, as well as propaganda of exclusivity, superiority or inferiority of citizens on grounds of their religion, class, national, generic or racial identity, committed publicly or with the use of mass media or information and communication networks, as well as by production or distribution of literature or other information media, promoting social, national, clan, racial, or religious discord").

The administrative cases were launched when prosecutors decided not to pursue the Article 174 criminal cases except in one case, where the court sent the administrative case for further investigation as a possible criminal case.
